Litigation Support Services Firm RVM Names COO

Sean King Brings More Than 15 Years of Litigation and eDiscovery Experience to New Role

NEW YORK, April 12, 2017 – RVM Enterprises, Inc., has announced the promotion of Sean King to Chief Operating Officer, effective immediately. RVM is a provider of eDiscovery, management services and litigation support.

King brings more than 15 years of litigation and eDiscovery experience to his new role. He will be responsible for strategically implementing the vision of RVM's customer-centric approach through all services and expanding RVM's market reach and service lines.

"Since joining RVM in 2014, Sean has been a dynamic, thought provoking leader that has played an integral role within our organization" said Vincent Brunetti, Chief Executive Officer.

In Mr. King's prior role, he oversaw RVM's Project Management and Hosting Support teams with a collaborative and consultative approach to partnering with clients. This led to the evolution and development of a Client Services team that is consultative on all aspects of a project, can manage clients' discovery and hosting support needs, and identify appropriate technology-based solutions for review and production.

"We are in an exciting moment in RVM's history where we can establish ourselves as an international discovery services vendor and take the customer-first approach to clients who have consistently been dissatisfied with a commoditized service offering for their needs. We believe the difference in services is in the people that offer the technical solutions and we plan on making sure we invest in the right people to meet our clients' needs" said Sean King, Chief Operating Officer.
